

Dr. German Ott is a pathologist with long-standing experience in the diagnosis, biology and genetics of lymphomas. He is Head of the Department of Clinical Pathology at the Robert-Bosch-Krankenhaus in Stuttgart and Reference pathologist for lymph node pathology and haematopathology in Germany. Dr. Ott has authored or co-authored >650 articles in peer-reviewed scientific journals. His research working group focuses on the importance of molecular features in the classification and risk stratification of lymphomas. He is a member of the Expert boards (editor) of the 5th (2022) and upcoming 6th edition of the WHO Classification of Haematolymphoid Tumours.